

We understand that the FCC is considering giving Low Power FM (LPFM) stations priority over the cutrrent FM translator service. A current user of the translator service in our area is K-LOVE. K-LOVE serves us (me, my wife, my in-laws, and my daughter) as a resident of the local community of Tierrasanta, San Diego. The effect on Tierrasanta and San Diego if K-LOVE were to be displaced by an LPFM broadcaster would be to remove the one modern Christian station available in this area. K-LOVE is unique in the format and song selection that it chooses. Surely, in the interest of diversity alone, maintaining the availability of such a unique station is in the public interest.
